Beulah - a place where memories are made had its 'origin' in 2015 when the author's brother visited Paeroa. The idea was formulated to take a copy of the book back to South Africa at the end of their holiday to the other side of the globe. Then in 2020, Amazon introduced Serialised books their arsenal which gave rise to republishing this edition as part of the 'Beulah' stories. It is essentially a pictorial record of the author's brother visit to Paeroa and the places visited, believing that a picture speaks a thousand words. Whilst its distribution will be confined to immediate relatives only, the author believes that the places and events attended may well appeal to the public at large. If so, please enjoy it - and if you do, then be so courteous as to leave a constructive review.
