From bestselling author Saxon Andrew comes the third book in The Alien and Epic Story series, The Uncertain Future. The Humans on Haven and the Truet Warriors fighting with them are being confronted by three powerful civilizations and juggling their options on how to handle them is getting out of hand. The war against the Vrang is at the point where attacks inside their spiral arm must begin quickly. However, if Epic leads his Attack Groups into the Vrang's spiral arm, it's a certainty the Alliance will move to stop him through persuasion or force. The Alliance says it's an ally but that's not the case. The Alliance and Vrang are working together secretly, and both represent a huge threat to Haven and the Truets. The Alliance is in the process of building up a massive fleet of advanced warships and the only possible purpose they serve is to remove Haven and the Truets as a threat to their master plan.

To make matters worse, the only visions of the future Jipsee sees is of Earth being attacked by an unknown powerful civilization that destroys the planet. Earth is still an enemy of Haven, but it is Humanity's home world. Epic is faced with the dilemma of trying to save Earth or let it perish. The list of enemies is growing, and the future is uncertain.

Excerpt - The Alien and Epic Story 3

Another three hours passed and Jipsee thought, "This is the final vision I've received." Epic saw a gigantic fleet of gold warships moving past a planet with rings around it. Jipsee thought, "That planet is Saturn and it's located in Earth's Solar System. That fleet is headed toward Earth." Jipsee saw Epic's expression and asked, "What's going on?"

Epic shrugged, "We don't have as much time as I've hoped before Earth is attacked. Epic turned to Rocky, "Do you see it?" Rocky nodded.

"Wait just a freaking minute!" Tragedy interjected. "Jipsee has no idea when her visions will happen?"

Epic shrugged and Jipsee added, "She's right. I have no idea when my visions will take place."

Tragedy and Jipsee looked between Epic and Rocky and Rocky thought, "This is your show now."

Epic turned to Jipsee and said, "I do believe you don't know when your visions will take place but perhaps the most important visions happen before you receive any others." Jipsee's eyes narrowed, and Epic held up his hand, "Just listen for a few minutes and tell me if you see something I'm missing." Jipsee nodded and sat back against the stone wall. "I believe your visions are the result of all the forces that lead to what you're seeing in your visions. I've wondered why we have been granted several delays by the Alliance and it dawned on me that another one of your visions hasn't happened yet."

“Which one is that?”

“Where I confront the Emperor.” Jipsee’s eyes widened, and she nodded. “I believe that in order for that vision to take place, it must happen before that alien fleet attacks Earth, right?”

“Well, it wouldn’t happen if Earth is destroyed.”

“These visions you’ve shown us clarifies some things in my mind and that confrontation must take place sooner than later.”

“Why?” Tragedy asked.

“Because I know why those aliens are attacking Earth and we must try to change the forces causing it.”

“Why are they attacking Earth?” Tragedy asked.

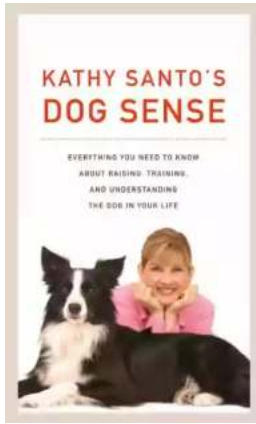

“Because they see Earth the same way we see the Vrang. They see Earth as a threat to them and they intend to remove it.”
