One of the most defining moments for the KOSB came during World War I. As the world plunged into the depths of war, the men of KOSB stepped forward to confront danger head-on. Their unwavering resolve led them to brave battles across the world, from the muddy trenches of the Western Front to the scorching heat of Gallipoli. Their bravery shone through in every action, underlining their commitment to protect the values they held dear.

The Battle of Loos in 1915 stands as a testament to the KOSB's indomitable spirit. They faced overwhelming odds as they charged towards the German lines, determined to break through and rally their allies. Despite heavy casualties, the KOSB soldiers fought valiantly, displaying astonishing resilience and unwavering loyalty to their cause. Their unyielding determination during this battle earned them the nickname "The Steelbacks," a title they proudly carried throughout the war.

The legacy of KOSB continued into World War II, where they once again illustrated their mettle in various theatres of war. During the infamous Dunkirk evacuation, the men of KOSB played a critical role in rescuing a multitude of stranded soldiers, displaying extraordinary bravery under relentless enemy fire. Their selfless acts of heroism resonated throughout Britain, serving as a beacon of hope during those dark times.

The regiment's contributions were not limited to just the two World Wars. The King Own Scottish Borderers have participated in numerous conflicts around the globe, from the Balkans to Northern Ireland. With each engagement, they carved their place in history and kept the spirit of Scotland alive.

Today, the KOSB is remembered with reverence and admiration. Their legacy lives on through the memorials, museums, and the accounts of those who fought beside them. The regimental museum, located in Berwick-upon-Tweed, showcases the tremendous valor exhibited by the KOSB throughout their existence. Visitors can immerse themselves in the stories, artifacts, and personal accounts that bring the history of this esteemed regiment to life.

The King Own Scottish Borderers continue to inspire generations with their bravery, resilience, and unwavering spirit. Their legacy is a reminder of the strength that lies within the human spirit when faced with unimaginable challenges. Their stories echo through the ages, symbolizing the enduring spirit of Scotland and the indomitable courage that defines the KOSB.

The King's Own Scottish Borderers is one of only two Scottish regiments never to have been amalgamated until it joined forces with The Royal Scots to form the 1st battalion of The Royal Regiment of Scotland in 2006. It is also unusual in that it lost its Scottish status between 1782 and 1887 when it served as the 25th (Sussex) Regiment of Foot.

Formed in Edinburgh in 1689, its first operational role was to defend the city during the period of turmoil following the accession of William and Mary of Orange. That same year the regiment fought at the Battle of Killiecrankie, where they withstood a ferocious charge by the Highlanders supporting James II. Since then, the regiment has fought in most of the major campaigns fought by the British Army.

In 1887, the regiment became The King's Own Scottish Borderers. It served with distinction during the two World Wars and achieved nationwide fame in 1915 when Sergeant Piper Daniel Laidlaw won the Victoria Cross during the Battle of Loos. Despite coming under heavy fire he played his pipes in full view of the enemy, encouraging the Borderers with the sound of 'Blue Bonnets o'er the Border' and 'The Standard on the Braes o' Mar'.

This concise account of the King's Own Scottish Borderers puts its story into the context of British military history and makes use of personal testimony to reveal the life of the regiment.
