In a new and glittering genre, the author brings together seventy very humorous e-mail blogs.

A 'must read' the informative and illuminating descriptions added to his 'off the wall' sense of humour brings to life the colourful experiences of world cruising. None was more surprised than he, when many others clamoured to be included for the regular e-mails.

The personal e-mail blogs were intended only for his daughter, as a report of his progress.

Although written in his inimitable style and sense of humour, the book will inspire all those that have a consuming interest in the world and its people.

David admits to not being a professional author but sincerely hopes that '104 NIGHTS' describes the delights and greatly amuses both prospective and seasoned world cruisers and travellers.
