Support Curriculum: American Wings, Iranian Roots

In addition to these excellent class support materials, Reza Abedi (who is fluent in Spanish, English and Farsi) and author Kristin Orloff will come to your class, in person if possible or via SKYPE, to further discussions with your students-- absolutely free!

Captivated by the excitement of Reza's story, readers discover Iranian customs, history and politics. The non-fiction narrative explores not only Iranian culture and politics, but also ancient and contemporary Middle Eastern history. The outstanding feature of this work is the narrative itself. Interlaced with the author's American point of view, American Wings, Iranian Roots connects our two societies with meaning and purpose—thus creating the perfect platform for academic conversations regarding the relationship between Iran and America, current Middle Eastern events, and Iranian society.

The book is available as an ebook, audio book and in print. Print books can be ordered at a discounted price. Contact author Kristin Orloff at Orloffwrites@gmail.com

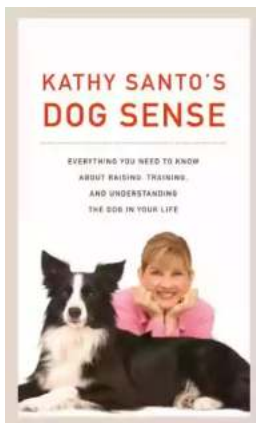

This ready-to-use complete curriculum will be worth every cent. Appropriate as a complement for a secondary course in English Language Arts or Social Studies, each chapter features a pre-reading preview, journal topics, discussion questions, group and individual activities, dialectical journal, literally circle topics, assessments, literary and Social Science connections, research topics and more! You will not be disappointed. If you prefer Word.doc, pdf or shared as a Google doc, contact the author at Orloffwrites@gmail.com. The version will be sent to you at no extra charge.

Reza's inspiring life celebrates honor, family and freedom. Students will experience the events before, during and after the 1979 Revolution thus procuring understanding and compassion only possible through authentic experience. Moreover, Reza's story celebrates core universal values of courage, freedom and honor.

Committed career educators, Reza and I recognize education to be the starting place to challenge stereotypes, foster compassion and build knowledge. We look forward to working with you in any capacity to bring Reza's story to students around the world.

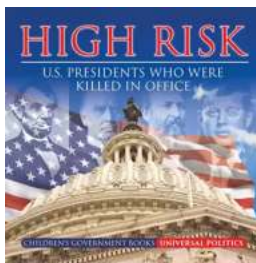

Photos, featured news articles and chapter excerpts can be found on our Facebook Page: American Wings, Iranian Roots.

Thank you for your consideration in sharing Reza's story.
