This recently revised memoir tells the frank story of one man's work inside the Banff Springs Hotel, in Banff, Alberta, in Canada's Rockies from 1988 to 1991 when the hotel was part of the huge Canadian Pacific Hotels Corporation. It was a frustrating job at times, hard work, working for the vast corporation, and there were incidents which would amaze many people who know of this famous hotel, but these incidents happen in all large hotels. The Banff Springs Hotel is a grand and eloquent old hotel, a castle made of stone well over 100 years ago; where kings, queens, movie stars, and presidents stay.

During summer months 1200 staff work in the hotel, which has its own security force. During peak rush times in the hotel staff can be very stressed and sometimes react surprisingly. Read and enjoy this revealing book. This revised 2nd Edition holds more anecdotes about the hotel than did the 1st edition, and this revised edition's writing has been polished up to shine brightly for its readers, just as hotel staff 'stars' would 'rise and shine' under Canadian Pacific Hotels staff enhancement schemes, and still do under its newer name of Fairmont Hotels Corporation.
